Police arrest 2 for theft after high-speed chase

Police arrested two Sikeston youths early today after they allegedly took two trucks from Al-Mar Sales, 127 W. Malone Ave., and one of them led police on a high-speed chase through Sikeston and New Madrid County.

Ricky Holifield, 19, of 415 Ruth St. was arrested for investigation of auto theft, and Ricky Washburn, 20, of 823 Ruth St. was arrested for investigation of auto theft and running six stop signs, speeding in the city, speeding in New Madrid County and having no license plates.

Officer Ray Merrick began chasing the two, who were in separate flatbed trucks about 11:35 p.m., after they began driving away at a high rate of speed from the former McKnight-Keaton building on West Malone Avenue.

They drove south on South Frisco Street and turned west on Ruth Street to Branum Street with Merrick chasing them. At Branum Street, Washburn turned south and Holifield turned north, Merrick said. He said he began chasing Washburn and followed him at a high rate of speed through several residential streets in the southwest part of town.

Washburn then allegedly turned onto West Murray Lane and drove east, running the stop sign at the intersection of South Kingshighway and Murray Lane at about 60 miles per hour.

Washburn allegedly ran a red light at the intersection of Highways 60 and 61, narrowly missing a house trailer being pulled by a truck on Highway 60.

Merrick said he continued to chase Washburn south on Highway 61. At one point Washburn allegedly stopped his truck and shifted into reverse and tried to ram the squad car. Several times he stopped suddenly, apparently hoping the squad car would ram into the back of the truck, police said.

Merrick said the truck was on the wrong side of the road quite often and finally ran off the road, through a ditch and back onto the road before Washburn stopped and was arrested at 12:05 a.m.

Merrick said the truck was smoking badly and was not in drivable condition after the chase. It had to be towed back to Sikeston.

Holifield was arrested at his home at 1:45 a.m. today. Police said he had returned the other truck to Al-Mar Sales.

Both youths were employed by Al-Mar.

Hearing set May 14 in tool theft case

A preliminary hearing was set on May 14 for Floyd Porter III and his common law wife Imogene Barrick, 1013 Applegate St., during Magistrate Court proceedings this morning in the Sikeston City Courtroom in connection with a tool theft case that turned up over $10,000 worth of tools in the house the couple shared.

Porter is charged with stealing personal property from Agrico Chemical Co. and from Bob McKnight, and Miss Barrick is charged with stealing personal property from Agrico Chemical Co.

In another case, a preliminary hearing was set on May 22 for Gregory Otis Terrell of Sikeston, who pleaded not guilty to April 2 charges of possession of marijuana and stealing personal property from the Sikeston public school.

Cases against Norman Dockins and David McDowell of Sikeston were continued until April 30. Dockins is charged with nonsupport, and McDowell is charged with stealing personal property on March 14 from Big Red's Auto Parts.

A warrant was issued for the arrest of David Sims of Sikeston who failed to appear in court on a Dec. 1, 1973 charge of writing a $25 bad check to Penneys.

A sheriff's spokesman said it was the first murder in the county that wasn't solved within a day or two since January 1973. He added that burglaries are extremely rare in the county.

Scott County Court endorses drainage plan

BENTON — The Scott County Court announced Monday that it plans to write a letter to the Army Corps of Engineers district office in Memphis, Tenn., to voice its approval of drainage projects the Corps of Engineers has announced to be performed in Scott County.

In a public hearing Thursday at Sikeston, the Corps of Engineers plan for improved drainage in Mississippi and New Madrid counties included 5.8 miles of drainage ditches in Sikeston to be cleared at an estimated cost of $287,000.

Presiding Judge Les Lankford said the court would mention in the letter that it would like to see more projects in Scott County than had been planned.

House passes maternal health care measure

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Both houses of the Missouri Legislature tuned up today for action on appropriations.

State-financed maternal health care gained approval in the House Monday while the Senate engaged in its second day of debate on reinstatement of the death penalty.

The maternal health care bill, favored by Gov. Christopher S. Bond, gained final approval without a dissenting vote in the House after having been shelved earlier in the session. It was revived last week and now goes to the Senate where the budget control committee killed a combined maternal health-hospital aid measure last week. That bill was opposed by the governor because of the inclusion of financial aid to hospitals.

Under the maternal health care bill, aimed at preventing mental retardation, women would be provided with statefinanced health care that Bond says will cut the incidence of mental retardation in their children considerably.

In the Senate, where chances for approval of the maternal health care bill appear dim with only a week left in the session, Sen. A. Clifford Jones, R-Brentwood, urged passage of a measure that would give police and city dwellers, he said, "a feeling of safety."

Jones claimed there would be no executions even if the death penalty were reinstated due to appeals and sentence communications. The only point in passing a death penalty bill, he contended, would be to satisfy public sentiment. The last execution in the Missouri gas chamber was in 1965.

The Senate, which spent seven days debating the death penalty before running out of time last year, has two Senate-sponsored reinstatement measures before it plus the one overwhelmingly approved by the House.

Many of Monday's arguments were the same as in the past.

"If we execute one innocent person, then that's one person too many," said Sen. Larry Marshall, R-Columbia. The recent slayings in the San Francisco area also came under discussion.

Last minute compromise frees funds

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — House and Senate conferees, aided by an interpretation of legislative rules that extended by 10 hours the deadline for passage of state appropriations bills, reached a compromise on the measures today after working through the night.

Rapid-fire floor approval in the Senate and House were expected this morning and the bills were to go to the governor.

Deadlocked for more than a week because of the conferees inability to reconcile the detailed line-item budget proposals of House with lump sum appropriations bills developed in the Senate, the committee finally moved quickly Monday after the House succumbed to Senate pressures.

As the committee, made up of five senators and five representatives, grappled with the 11 bills, the measures receiving approval were rushed to House-Senate staff members for printing.

The bills, covering the state's $2 billion budget for fiscal 1974-75, had to receive legislative approval before the end of the April 22 "legislative day" under joint rules of both houses.

Originally, both Senate and House members thought the deadline for sending the bills to the governor was Monday midnight.

But a reinterpretation of the rule said the deadline was the end of the so-called April 22 "legislative day," which would not officially end until the beginning of the legislative session today, April 23.

Among the appropriations bills agreed on were measures to provide $520 million for public elementary and secondary education, including $387 million in state aid to local schools.

Approval of the higher education appropriations saw the University of Missouri receive $113.7 million, including about $900,000 for the controversial Independence Residence Center, to be taken over by the university. It now is operated by Central Missouri State University at Warrensburg.

Although the appropriation was a boost over this year's figure of $104.7 million, it was more than $6 million less than requested by the university.

Appropriations from state taxes for state colleges and universities outside the University of Missouri system were:

Northeast Missouri State, $8.3 million; Northwest Missouri State, $6.9 million; Lincoln University, $5.3 million; Southeast Missouri State, $8.4 million; Southwest Missouri State, $12.2 million; Central Missouri State, $11.2 million; Missouri Western, $2.6 million; and Missouri Southern, $2.3 million.

The state's $57 million capital improvements budget also gained approval with the inclusion of several major items although most of the projects remained unchanged from committee recommendations.

Major building projects include $4.5 million for renovation and parking lot construction for a state office building at the Wainwright Building in downtown St. Louis, with a provision that state offices also be located in the Continental Building in midtown; $6 million for a veterinary medicine complex at the University of Missouri-Columbia, $6.2 million for a music conservatory and performing arts center at MU-Kansas City, and $2.2 million general services building at MU-St. Louis.

Also receiving acceptance were funding measures for the state Revenue Department, Mental Health, welfare, prisons and other state agencies.

The budget includes a 5 per cent across-the-board pay raise for all stat workers plus a merit increase for about 20 per cent of the state's employes.

The budget for the state's elective offices included no money for the Missouri Information Service, the public relations arm of the executive branch. A controversial St. Louis County Sewer District project received $2 million.

The House bill contained money for setting up new Revenue Department branch offices, doubling the state's total. The Senate eliminated the $1.4 million expenditure conferees agreed on new branch offices at Columbia, Florissant- Hazelwood and Raytown.

New Madrid takes first step to impeach marshal

NEW MADRID-- The first step to initiate impeachment proceedings against City Marshal O. E. Householder was taken Monday in a special closed meeting of the Board of Aldermen, during which Mayor Robert A. Riley recommended that Householder be removed from office for cause.

Householder is to be given notice to appear at a meeting at 8 p.m. May 3 and show cause, if any, why such action should not be taken.

Aldermen who voted to approve the mayor's recommendation were Bill Boyd and Ras Jones of ward one, Bob Blom of ward two and Dick Phillips Jr. of ward three. Ward two alderman Ed LaValle was out of town and ward three alderman John A. Hunter, a son- in- law of Householder, abstained.

Proceedings for the marshal's removal from office stem from a shooting incident early Sunday morning involving Householder and Alderman Jones.

Householder is alleged to have fired a pistol during a fight with Jones which occurred at 12:45 a.m. outside Rosie's Colonial Restaurant and Tavern on Highway 61.

Witnesses reported one shot was fired, and in some manner the bullet struck Jones in the right hand as he grabbed for the gun and then deflected and wounded Householder's right leg.

Householder, at the time of the incident, was off duty, and both men reportedly had been drinking.

Jones was treated and released Sunday at Missouri Delta Community Hospital in Sikeston, where Householder was released Monday morning.

Jones signed a complaint Monday charging Householder with felonious assault with a pistol. Householder has been notified by the sheriff's office that a warrant has been issued and he has agreed to appear for arraignment in Magistrate Court as soon as his physical condition permits.

FRESH FRUIT IN YOUR OWN BACKYARD

This is a good time to put in fruit trees, and with prices where they are there is special appeal to the idea of having fresh fruits for the family right in your own backyard ... delicious foods you'll never have to buy again.

The American Association of Nurserymen, the national organization of authorities in such matters, has a few simple instructions that can contribute to the success of your fruit tree addition. The two major factors to consider in planting your fruit trees, they say, are good drainage and plenty of sun. Pick a spot where water will not remain standing and where the tree is in sunlight as much as possible during the day.

Select your own favorite fruit varieties suitable for this area from nursery- grown stock available from any reputable nursery garden center or mailorder house. Planting and care instructions will be readily available from the firm supplying the trees, but to give the new gardener an idea of the simplicity of the project he is undertaking the American Association of Nurserymen offers these brief hints.

First, prepare a hole large enough so the bare roots of the fruit trees fit in their natural shape. If the tree roots are balled in burlap the hole should be about twice the size of the ball. The soil you put back in the hole should fit snugly around the roots to avoid air spaces. When planting is completed, the new tree should be at about the same depth as it was in the nursery. Finally, protect the young tree's trunk with a wrapping of burlap or cloth or tree paper for its first season or two.

It sounds fairly simple the way the nursery people describe it, doesn't it? And it is. This is the right time to begin to enjoy nature's gift of fresh foods you'll never have to buy again.

An editor - friend writes: "We read a suggestion that many problems could be solved if everyone got equal pay. The idealist who proposes such a thing is oblivious to the fact that all willing workers do not produce -- we refer to the old cliche that some are willing to do it and the others are willing to let them. At any rate the small town businessman could not operate on an equal pay basis. The extra unpaid hours he puts in would have to be ruled out for to be equal in pay we must also be equal in hours worked. And if those unpaid hours were not worked -- well the small town business could not produce enough to support itself."

NEED A STATE-WIDE VOTE ON THESE

Some legislators at Jefferson City continue to back bills that would increase retirement benefits for members of the House and Senate, after only six years of service.

Others continue to back bills that would raise salaries of legislators from the present $8,400 for their part time jobs to $10,000 or more.

What Missouri taxpayers need is an organization that would put both of these matters on the ballot, and let the people of the state, who pay the bill, decide what to do.

It is the heighth of the ridiculous and of poor business methods for us to allow the people we hire, - the Legislators - to set their own salaries and their own pension qualifications and pay.

Few businesses could survive under such a system.

NIXON'S WEALTH

The General Services Administration ruled Friday that President Nixon could not legally reclaim the vice presidential papers which he had deeded to the National Archives, even though his huge tax exemption claim for that donation had been disallowed.

To these many Americans who still support the President despite all the scandals blamed on his administration, this may seem to be an unfair blow. Disallowance of that tax exemption claim together with some others have left Mr. Nixon owing the federal government some $467,000 which, when paid, will virtually halve his known wealth of just under $1 million.

No denying that, it is a blow, but it won't leave the President a poor man; in fact, there is every reason to believe he will die at least a millionaire. The deeded papers were only a part — apparently a less important part — of his vice presidential papers. A syndicate is reported to have offered Mr. Nixon $1 million for what remains. And there will be the much more important papers and memoribilia of his presidency, once he retires.

Even more, most presidents, after retiring, write their memoirs and judging by prices paid in recent years, they probably will bring him close to a million dollars. And finally, he will have the pension to which all past presidents are entitled, currently $60,000 a year.

No doubt about it, Mr. Nixon will be a wealthy man in later years, regardless of the financial vicissitudes of the hour.

Not all presidents have been so fortunate, although some have. George Washington's estate at death, not too long after retirement from the White House, was valued at $530,000 — the equivalent of perhaps $20 million today.

And Lyndon B. Johnson was a millionaire, though the base of that wealth was laid in the 1940s through Mrs. Johnson's purchase of a Texas radio station that proved later to be a virtual gold mine, and shrewd reinvestments from its earnings.

On the contrary, Ulysses S. Grant was an extremely poor man through most of his life, retired comfortably well off only to lose all he had in a colossal swindle. He drove himself to work frenziedly through the last weeks of his life and completed just before his death the memoirs that brought his family $450,000 and saved his loved ones from virtual pauperdom.

More recent and much closer home was Harry Truman, a poor man all his life, comparatively a poor man yet when he retired. Of course, he had his presidential pension which was more than adequate to his needs, and he sold his memoirs at a high price.

On the other hand, Mr. Truman, unlike some presidents and most nationally famed politicians, refused adamantly to cash in on his prestige. After retirement, he was offered many highly lucrative posts but turned them all down, explaining.

"They were not interested in hiring Harry Truman, the person. It was the former president of the United States they wanted. I could never lend myself to any transaction, however respectable, that would commercialize on the prestige and dignity of the office of the presidency."

At least one other president — one sometimes compared to President Nixon because of unrelenting and severe castigations his administration endured — found the honor of heading the greatest nation on earth compensation enough; he never in his four years accepted a cent of salary. That was former President Herbert Hoover, a man far greater than most people of his day realized.

"A DAMN POOR SYSTEM"

Two U. S. physicians recently toured Great Britain under the auspices of the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare. They visited hospitals, talked to physicians and sat in on patient examinations. The conclusions they reached after observing Britain's nationalized medical system indicate that the people of the U. S. should think long and hard before plunging headlong into any all-encompassing form of national health insurance.

The two American doctors found that "primary care physicians" in the United Kingdom are "years behind and worlds apart from "their American counterparts. The average British general practitioner does virtually no lab work, no x-rays, no surgery and is prohibited from treating patients in the hospital. One of the U. S. doctors said, "British GPs are well- trained, knowledgeable individuals, but they just don't get a chance to use what they know. They're under a lot of pressure to avoid spending the government's money ... their patient loads are quite heavy, and the appointment schedules don't allow much more than five minutes per patient. It doesn't make any difference what the patient has, he only gets five minutes ..." One of the American doctors concluded, "The way I saw it, the British general practitioner is nothing more than a referral bureau. He's kind, he's considerate: but that doesn't find a malignancy, and that doesn't cure nephritis, and that doesn't cure a lot of things. It's just a damn poor system, and if we ever allow ourselves to get into that same situation we've had it."

The widely- accepted notion that all of those who advocate government sponsorship of "free medicine" for all are automatically endowed with greater wisdom and greater concern for their fellowman than opponents of such a system is a most dangerous fallacy.

PRINCIPLES OF FREEDOM

With some two million member families, The American Farm Bureau Federation is a true cross section of the United States. Since its policies on public matters are arrived at through an extensive membership participation program, those policies accurately reflect the convictions and beliefs of a large segment of American citizens.

A statement of those convictions and beliefs was presented to both the Democratic and Republican Party platform committees so that the major political parties and the country at large will know that American farm families want their government to "work toward a market-oriented agriculture and the elimination of compensatory payments as soon as possible." The statement declared, "A major objective of Farm Bureau policy is to create conditions whereby farmers and ranchers may earn and get high per-family real income in a manner which will preserve freedom and opportuniy. We firmly believe that this objective can best be accomplished by relying more on the market price system ... The prosperity of the nation's farm families depends on the successful functioning of the American capitalistic, private, competitive enterprise system." The statement condemned inflation breeding government spending that has brought steady erosion of the dollar and poses "... a serious threat to economic stability in our economy today..."

No group of American citizens have had more intimate experience with government controls and subsidies than farmers -- and no group is more vehement in calling for a return to free market principles and less government intervention in our lives. Here is a clear warning that all people are not ready to accept subservience to big government as a way of life.

HIGHER TRUCKING RATES FOR MISSOURI

The Public Service Commission of Missouri has granted rate increase requests to truck companies, but in an effort to protect the public, substantially reduced the rates asked.

It allowed an increase of 6.5% on shipments of less than 5,000 pounds, and 4.5% on shipments over 5,000 pounds. It also denied the carrier's request for an increase in extra service charges.

The truckers had asked for increases of 17.55% on less than 5,000 pounds, and 9.68% on all above that.

The increases were justifiably allowed because of increased costs for truckers, just as rates and prices in all other areas have been forced into increases.

NOT SO BAD OFF A doctor showing tourists through a New York city mental hospital paused before a room in which a man was holding a beautiful, life-sized doll and was caressing her lovingly.

"This man," explained the doc, "was engaged to be married, but his bride- to - be jilted him at the last moment and married another man. The shock drove this poor fellow completely out of his mind and he imagines that doll to be his bride."

The visitors were deeply touched and uttered various expressions of sympathy.

Then they passed to the next room, which was covered with heavy iron bars and was thickly padded.

"And this" resumed the doc, "is the other man."

PERSONAL ENTERPRISE SOLVING THE GAS SHORTAGE

Almost unnoticed in the newspaper clamor over the flailings of Congress and the federal bureaucracy regarding our gas shortage, along with the news of the at- least-temporary lifting of the Arab oil embargo, was the fact that in spite of, rather than because of governmental regulations and allocations, the gas shortage had already begun to ease before the embargo ended. The cause was very simple: prices were rising to their reasonable market level.

For years, government has artificially held down the price of oil and natural gas. When to these earlier restrictions were added the tighter ones of the now- dying federal price control program of 1971 and the special problems caused by the Arab oil embargo, the shortage became obvious. This caused much trouble during January and February.

In March, while Federal Energy Administrator Simon was still trying to find out why the extra oil he supposedly allocated to the mid- Atlantic states at the end of February never arrived, and before the Arab oil embargo was lifted, gas became more and more readily available at the neighborhood pump throughout most of the country. Under the pressure of the shortage, and very quietly, the government had finally begun to do what it should have done long before: lift the price ceilings. Some of the chains were taken off personal enterprise, and it performed its usual miracle.

In fact there would never have been a severe shortage at all, had our government followed the example of the governments of most of free Europe and decontrolled gas prices from the very beginning. HLH

THE POLYESTER PLAN

WASHINGTON-- A group of men were having lunch at a well- known restaurant in Washington the other day. Although they were in various professions, they all had one thing in common. They were away from home a great deal and their wives had said they were getting fed up with it.

Amazingly enough it turned out that their wives, who did not even know each other, used the identical phrases when complaining about their lot.

These included: "All I'm doing is running a hotel."

"The only time I see you is when you come home to get clean laundry."

"You weren't even here for your own daughter's birthday party."

"What the heck is so important in-----?" (Fill in the city where you're going.)

It was at this juncture that Polyester, who works for a computer firm, sprung his plan.

"Our wives' main complaint," he said, "is that they have no one to talk to, which translates no one to bitch to. The reason why we're missed is that they want someone to listen to their stories and give them moral support."

We all agreed Polyester's description of our wives was accurate.

"Suppose," he said excitedly, "we had a computer that could match up complaining wives with other husbands who were on the road?"

We all looked goggle- eyed.

"Are you suggesting wife-swapping?" Acrilan asked.

"In a sense," said Polyester, "but no hanky- panky in the bedroom. You swap wives just so that they have someone to talk to. Let me give you an illustration. I'm on my way to Boston and I feed the computer at National Airport the arrival of my flight and how long I'll be there. I also tell the computer how many children I have, my position in the firm and salary.

"The object of the computer would be to match me as closely as possible to my own situation at home. The computer gives me an address and phone number. At this very moment there is a man in Boston coming to Washington, D. C., and he goes to his computer and asks for an address here. He gets mine. Right?

"Okay. I get to Boston and I check into my hotel. Now remember, the success of this scheme is no hanky- panky.

"Let's say my surrogate wife is Mrs. Dacron. I call her and ask when dinner is being served. I show up at the house at 6 p.m. and before I even get to hang my coat in the closet, Mrs. Dacron fills me in on the day. She tells me how lousy the kids have been behaving, what went wrong with the garbage disposal unit, how much she paid for eggs and how she can't manage a family on my salary. I get an earful.

"At this very moment the man from Boston is at my house listening to my wife doing two hours on what it's like to run a house when the man doesn't even know where the fuse box is.

"Mrs. Dacron is thrilled to have someone there to let out her frustrations on, and my wife finally has someone besides the kids to talk to."

"But what happens after dinner?" someone asked.

Polyester replied "I go into the living room and watch television while Mrs. Dacron does the dishes."

"Don't you help her with the dishes?"

"Hell no. It would ruin it for Dacron if I did something he didn't do. Then after watching TV I go to my hotel. Dacron, who presumably let my wife do the dishes while he read the evening paper, also goes back to his place."

The trouble with Polyester's plan, when we all discussed it later, is that not one of us could find a single thing wrong with it.

JACK ANDERSON SAYS:
Urban Guerrillas

WASHINGTON-- The Symbionese Liberation Army's commando raid on a bank, with Patricia Hearst wielding an automatic rifle, has government officials frankly worried.

They see it as a sign that the assassinations, bombings, kidnappings and other terrorist tactics, which plague other nations from Argentina to Britain, may soon hit our cities.

There is no coordinated underground guerrilla movement. Indeed, the insurgents often argue over ideology and tactics. But the FBI has evidence of increasing cooperation between guerrilla groups.

In the Middle East, the Japanese Red Army is aiding the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine which, in turn, is sharing training resources with Turkish dissidents. Irish Republican Army insurgents have obtained sophisticated weapons from Arab terrorists, who get financial support from Libya.

Guerrillas in Bolivia, Chile and Uruguay are believed to be sharing weapons, tactical information and training resources. And in Europe, Arab terrorits are cooperating with German anarchists. Intelligence reports warn they, too, have access to extremely advanced weapons.

The FBI has linked SLA members to a student commune, known as the "Peking House," outside Berkeley, Calif. The SLA allegedly has drawn inspiration from the Maoist philosophy taught at the "Peking House."

When SLA members Russell Little and Joseph Remiro were arrested for the murder of an Oakland school official, police found guerrilla literature in their possession. The texts apparently evolved from guerrilla manuals first produced by the Chinese Communists.

But the most ominous development in the revolutionary movement has been a shift from the countryside to urban ghettos. Entire manuals have been written especially for the urban guerrillas. These have been widely studied by insurgents in Argentina, Brazil and Uruguay. Evidence of the shift toward urban warfare has also appeared in Africa and the Middle East.

The Symbionese Liberation Army is now imitating this new breed of revolutionaries. They stage daring robberies, murders and kidnappings, then disappear into hideouts in the middle of crowded cities.

This movement into heavily populated areas has forced American military experts to revamp their strategy for fighting guerrillas. The military is forbidden by law, however, from applying their expertise against domestic militants. The responsibility belongs strictly with the FBI.

We have seen lists of the revolutionary groups the FBI keeps tabs on, and we have seen intelligence reports describing their activities. Maoist- style guerrilla gangs already are active in many American cities, according to these FBI reports, and more acts of terrorism can be expected in the future.

HEADLINES AND FOOTNOTES: Entertainer Sammy Davis Jr., whose impulsive hugging of President Nixon was one of the highlights of the 1972 Republican convention, would like to forget the incident. When the President's name came up in his presence the other night, Davis winced and pleaded: 'Don't mention his name to me"...John Lennon, the former Beatle now fighting expulsion from the United States, was offered a sniff from a vial of cocaine at a recent posh Los Angeles party. Eyes flashing, Lennon knocked the vial to the floor and hissed: "Not around me!" Lennon's friends say he has become militantly against drugs...Republican congressmen have been grumbling in the backrooms against their top impeachment lawyer, Albert Jenner, a distinguished Chicago attorney. A move to oust him say our sources, is led by conservative Reps. Larry Hogan, R- Md., and David Dennis, R- Ind. They don't think he has been valiant enough in defending President Nixon against impeachment...The Environmental Protection Agency, which has shelled out millions to major automakers to help them develop an efficient antipollution engine, has refused to fund a gadget backed by consumer champion Ralph Nader. His Public Interest Group now finds itself in a Catch 22 situation. It cannot prove the device works without EPA funds, but EPA won't grant the funds unless they prove the device works...George Webster, a prominent Nixon campaign supporter once considered for the job of Internal Revenue commissioner, has been running a profit- making tax seminar institute, featuring Treasury Department officials. He charges $175 for two days of sessions with experts such as Assistant Treasury Secretary John Hall and Treasury tax specialist Ernest Christian. Hall said neither were paid for their services. They participated in the seminars, he said, merely to help get important Treasury information before the tax law community.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

New Black Power:

Black Labor Convention Will Demand Bigger Voice and Sweeping New Unionization Campaigns

WASHINGTON-- Today's black labor leaders are the new breed. They're younger than their white "brothers." They're sophisticated. They're sharp. They're militant. Their two-year- old Coalition of Black Trade Unionists (CBTU), operating inside the labor movement, wants a much bigger piece of the leadership action than they're getting.

They say they've replaced the symbol of Uncle Tom's Cabin with the symbol of the huge Detroit Cobo Arena where they'll soon open their second annual convention to whip their apparatus into shape, to show their solidarity with congressional Black Caucus leaders and political powers such as Detroit's black Mayor Coleman Young.

And they'll demand that the national labor movement launch unionization drives in the inner cities and especially in the South.

Coalition leaders will open that convention of 1,800 delegates from scores of unions on May 3. The next day they plan to fill Detroit's central square with tens of thousands of black demonstrators to call for aid to auto workers and others whose jobs were washed out by the new styles of the energy crunch.

Their leaders are fast to see the new era. It's all around us. It is spurting out of the office of John Powell, chairman of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC), and from the Justice Department. The latter's Civil Rights division has upgraded and leapfrogged blacks over many white workers industry by industry-- the utilities and the truck and steel businesses.

Upcoming now for "equal employment" review is the "communications" field, meaning the national broadcasting networks and locals as well. Then banking. Finally the auto industry and public employment.

Industry by industry has been and will be disbursing reparation pay to black workers, remaking seniority lists, cracking the promotion pipelines and ripping apart departments and opening executive suites.

There's no doubt the black worker believes this is his-- and her-- year. What the government is ramming through, albeit in "consent decrees" in the mills, white-collar offices and "over- the-road" hauling, the blacks now will try to force inside labor.

Few realize there are some 500,000 black workers (out of 1.5 million members) in the United Auto Workers; some 200,000 of 1.2 million in the United Steelworkers; about 200,000 in the 615,000-member American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees; 200,000 of 2.1 million Teamsters, and hundreds of thousands more in the construction and (building) service trades.

The Black Coalition leaders say their followers' collective voice should be heard in labor's highest circles, such as the AFL- CIO Executive Council meeting here May 9. They want no quarrel with the traditional white leadership. But they want action.

"We will get closer to the people in the communities," says the municipal employes national secretary- treasurer, 39- year- old Bill Lucy, an influential member of the CBTU executive committee, "and get a voice for them in the leadership. We aren't needling anyone. But we want to get the community involved. We will go into our national convention to discuss this and political action-- how to get results, how to deliver the vote. We will prepare to dig up the human resources of the black communities, to train people for political campaigns. We want organizing where there is no organizing. First we will go in to organize, and then get the new members into the proper unions. We have no special targets. Just organizing."

If Lucy and the rest of the Executive Committee-- a broad spectrum group-- mean what they say, the unionization and politicization drives will fan through the South. Wherever there are large black coalition unions, they will help the smaller ones. Where there are none, they'll send in organizers. There is Atlanta, for example, which has a new black mayor, Maynard Jackson.

It may all be a dream with a "we shall overcome" euphoria. But the new black leadership may get it off the ground. They may roll. It won't be as easy as the old civil rights drive. Nor will it be as popular with the labor establishment. But the coalition now can turn out 1,800 delegates. And in its executive group are national union vice presidents.

They want their place in the command posts of the building and construction trades, the teachers and other traditional white officialdom.

But it will come as the new proletariat replaces the old in the mills, in the transit systems and other mass industries.

Tomorrow's black power will have a stronger voice than the strident cries of yesterday.

Now, in addition to these costs, you can also deduct travel expenses for pre-move house- hunting trips. Also deductible now, are temporary living expenses (up to 30 days) at the new job location. In addition, expenses such as real estate commissions, mortgage costs, and similar items incurred in buying or selling your home, or settling a lease are now deductible.

The maximum deduction for these newly added categories is $2,500. No more than $1,000 of this can be for house- hunting and temporary living expenses. These benefits now apply to the sel-f employed as well as to employees. To qualify for these deductions, your new job site must be at least 50 miles away. The old requirement was 20 miles.

Ann Landers

Every girl needs exam before getting married

Dear Ann Landers: I have started this letter five times and now I am just going to say it the way it comes into my head. Please tell me if it is necessary for a girl to scream her head off because of the pain, the first time she has sexual intercourse?

My cousin (who has been like a sister to me) was married three weeks ago. When she returned from her honeymoon she told me the first few nights were agony. The pain was unbearable. The poor kid is only 18 and from a strict Catholic family where sex was never discussed. She certainly wasn't prepared for anything like that. Apparently her husband didn't know much either and they had a terrible time.

I am 16 years old and not as smart about these things as I ought to be. My "sex education" is mostly slumber- party chit- chat picked up from my girl friends. Two gals in our crowd were married this year and nobody said anything about pain. If I asked my mother such a question, she would turn ten shades of red and wonder what I was up to. So please, Ann, give me an answer.-- Dumb In Dubuque

Dear D.: Generally speaking, the initial act of intercourse is not so painful that a girl would "scream her head off." In the case of your cousin, however, there was probably some gynecological abnormality, such as an extremely thick membrane which should have been removed by a physician's scalpel. This is just ONE of the reasons every girl should have a gynecological examination before she marries.

Dear Ann Landers: I'd like to answer the letter signed "One Who'd Rather Fight Than Quit."

He says he is fed up with TV ads that try to scare people who smoke. He claims smoking is the only fun left in life that isn't illegal, immoral or fattening. His final words were, "Whose business is it?"

It is MY business when YOUR smoke might cause me to have an asthma attack or give me lung cancer.

The same newspaper that carried that idiot's statement reported the tragic death of 25 schoolboys who died in a dormitory fire in Belgium. The fire was started by a lad who was smoking in bed and fell asleep. I can't get the picture of those 25 little coffins out of my mind. It was murder by proxy. If that isn't immoral and illegal, what is?

Are you so worthless, sir, that your family would feel no grief, no sense of anguish if you should accidentally cremate yourself? But, as you said, you are over 21 and can do as you please.

May the Lord forever bless the medical institutions who do research, the lawmakers, the media, and the millions of concerned citizens who are trying to educate the public to the dangers of smoking. Go ahead and "rather fight" if you want to, but as for me-- I'm Glad I Quit

Dear Glad: I'm glad you quit, too. You represent one less nicotine addict to foul the air and jeopardize the rest of us who want no part of the filthy weeds.

Dear Ann: Have you ever had your face lifted? I bet my brother- in- law you did and I have agreed to give $1,000 to your favorite charity if you will admit it in print.-- Beverly Hills

Dear Bev.: I'd sure love to collect that $1,000 for The Lambs, whose address is simply Libertyville, Illinois. They employ retarded adults and sell the best bakery goods I ever ate in my life, but the answer is NO. Thanks for the compliment, anyway.

Don't flunk your chemistry test. Love is more than one set of glands calling to another. If you have trouble making a distinction you need Ann's booklet, "Love or Sex and How To Tell the Difference." Send a long, self- addressed, stamped envelope with your request and 35c in coin to Ann Landers, P. O. Box 3346, Chicago, Illinois 60654.

Summer '74 will be full of variety in looks,silhouettes, fabrics and colors. Easy, ungimmicked shapes will be done in soft, flowing fabrics. Clear colors will be worn tone- on- tone for a polished pulled together look. Clothes that are easy to wear and go many places are what the miss and junior customer are looking for this summer.

The dress revival is here. Dresses take on a fresh new look for summer in light as a feather fabrics and a soft, fluid feeling. Shirtdresses and wrapdresses are worn with a shapelier, more refined shoe to create an air of elegance. Shirt on shirt looks and multi- piece dresses give the fashionable lady a pulled together look with the ease of one- stop shopping.

Skirts are a fashion fact this summer. They can be worn short or long, solid or print, in easy pleats,softly gathered or gently flipped. Wear them with a soft shirt or a classic T-shirt. Add a print scarf or simple chain at the neck, and top everything with a fun hat, and the look is complete.

Pants have become the great American classic. They look great with nearly everything. Try them with a new bare T- shirt, a halter or an art deco shirt. The finishing touch is jewelry reflecting the natural influence in shells, denim and wood.

Clothes show variety

Wallpaper flowers on chintz pants, a bared down T-shirt and many skinny bangles are fun for summer '74.

Caring for your new baby

Key to disciplining is 'reward'

XI. After the First Weeks— Part 5

soc

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is another in a series of 18 articles presented by the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare to describe some of the things about normal babies that commonly worry parents and tell what to do or not to do about them. The articles should answer many questions about what to expect of your new baby and give simple instructions about solving problems that most parents face during their baby's first year of life. This section of the series concerns development of the child after the first few weeks when he is visibly growing every day, developing a few rudimentary language skills and becoming more mobile.)

Discipline and Teaching

The word "discipline" means teaching. It does not mean punishment, as many people think. Your child will be well "disciplined" when he learns to do those things which please you and which help him to grow and develop, and when he learns not to do those things which displease you and the people around him and which keep him from growing and developing.

The key to learning and discipline is not punishment, but reward. When your baby first smiles, you pay attention to him and smile back. When he smiles again, you smile back and pay attention to him again, and you may talk to him and cuddle him. He soon learns that when he smiles good things happen to him, and he learns to do a lot of smiling when you are around.

In just the same way, when you pay attention to his first cooing and gurgling sounds, your smile, your voice and your fondling reward him. He coos and gurgles more and more frequently. When he is five or six months old, he begins to notice that you "reward" him more when he repeats sounds you make than when he makes just any old sound. Pretty soon he imitates everything you say and begins to learn to talk.

If his smile is constantly ignored, he will stop smiling. And if his cooing and gurgling and making sounds is constantly ignored, he will soon stop making sounds. You actually teach your child to smile by rewarding him when he smiles, and you actually teach him to talk by rewarding him when he talks! You teach him by responding to what he does in a consistent way. If you want him to smile, you respond to the smile. If you don't want him to smile, you ignore it.

The same thing holds true for almost all other kinds of behavior. When you respond to something your child does by giving your attention, a smile, a kind word, or by fondling or joy, your baby will do that thing more and more frequently. If you ignore it, it will be done less and less frequently. With these two methods, rewarding and ignoring, you will teach your child almost everything he learns.

What about punishment? Will a baby stop doing something if he is constantly punished for it? It should work that way but actually punishment doesn't work well in the first years of life. The baby usually can't figure out just what behavior is being punished.

If you slap him when he throws a spoonful of food on the floor, he may not know whether he is being punished for eating, for trying to feed himself or for something else. He may stop eating or trying to feed himself rather than start to become a neat eater.

Then too, punishment is a form of attention. Some babies may enjoy attention more than they dislike the punishment. If a child who threw a spoonful of food on the floor saw just a slight frown on his mother's face and was rewarded with a smile for many of the times he got the spoon on his mouth, he would soon give up any purposeful spilling.

Of course, the baby sooner or later must learn that some of the things he does makes people around him irritated or angry. You don't have to be always calm, smile or hold your temper. But, the fact that his behavior is sometimes irritating and that you show your irritation in natural ways at times is quite different from trying to teach him to behave through punishment.

There are some things your baby will do which are just plain dangerous. During the first year of life, if he gets hold of something sharp or something he can swallow, you just must take it away from him promptly.

At the end of the first year, you can begin to teach him the meaning of "no" by rewarding him when he stops doing something dangerous when you say the word. Soon you will be able to use the word "no" to keep him out of dangerous situations.

Save most of your harsh words and punishments for teaching him about things that are really dangerous. Don't waste your "no- no's" on things that really don't matter.

City's first woman telephone installer is enthusiastic

One Final check

With the main part of a telephone mounted on the wall of an apartment, telephone installer Tammy Houston checks the dial tone and digits before putting on the front.

By JUDY STRICKLIN

Tammy Houston, a slim 19- year- old, has a rather unique job. She is the first woman telephone installer for Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. in the Sikeston area.

Miss Houston is formerly of Springfield "and several other places." Her father is also employed by the telephone company, so she is accustomed to the dialect and humor of telephone company personnel.

Miss Houston attended college at Springfield for two years, but "got bored with school" last fall and wanted to earn her own way for a while, so she applied for several jobs in Springfield. Then her father encouraged her to apply at Southwestern Bell. She applied, took the company test and two days later received a call saying a telephone installer was needed in Sikeston, if she was interested.

From there, she went to Kansas City to the Initial Plant Employes Training School, for three weeks where she learned, among other things, "how to shinny up a pole." That was followed by another two weeks at an installation school.

"While attending the schools, we (employes) stayed at a motor lodge we laughingly called "Southwestern Bell Dorm" because most of those going to school were there," she said.

"For a 19- year- old, there's plenty of security in a job with the telephone company," she added. "For instance, if I couldn't have handled this job, I could have applied for one elsewhere in the company before the officials would have fired me simply because I might not have been suited for this situation."

Miss Houston was quick to add, however, that she does feel suited to the job and has learned a lot during her three months of actually being on the installation force.

When asked how people react to her job, she said men always laugh or chuckle and say, "Well, I'll be!"

The women, however, come in two categories. They either seem really pleased to see a woman installer, or they act like she's entirely out of place and doing something entirely for men.

Miss Houston said she expected to find resentment and a few weird looks from the men at the installation shack when she arrived, but was relieved to find none.

"Most of them (other installers) are kind and helpful and have a tendency to protect me. Some act like I'm a baby bird and try to give me a little advice here and there to help out. Mostly, I appreciate them when I get discouraged because I'm slower than they are.

"I haven't had the time yet to increase my speed," she continued, "but, I'm working on it. I know I can count on any of them when I have a question or problem, and they always will laugh it off and not make fun of me...like when the company said I had to learn to drive my own truck, and I couldn't get it in one of those narrow parking places. They kept reminding me that I was working, not going shopping at the local center."

In her spare time, Miss Houston reads, works at such crafts as pottery, candle-making and string art and enjoys playing the guitar for her own benefit. She also has a cat which recently had four kittens.

"I'm happy in Sikeston; I like the people and everyone seems very friendly," she concluded. "Yeah, I guess anyone could be happy as a Sikeston installer if they just tried."

Finding the right wire

Finding the right wire can sometimes be a little tricky, according to Miss Tammy Houston, Sikeston's first woman telephone installer, but the best way to do it is "take a seat" and proceed with care.

Rain won't stop her

Even a cool rain like the one in Sikeston Monday afternoon, doesn't stop Tammy Houston from checking outside wires to install a telephone in a new apartment complex. Miss Houston says the rain, snow, etc., can bother her at times, but it also bothers the men telephone installers as well.

The College Singers

Singers to perform

The College Singers from Missouri Baptist College at St. Louis will appear at Trinity Baptist Church, Highway 61 North, Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. under the direction of Mrs. Marjorie Psalmonds.

During its annual spring concert tour this week, the concert choir will perform in high schools, colleges and churches in Tennessee, Arkansas and Illinois, as well as Missouri.

The College Singers are musically talented students representing freshmen through senior classes and many different major fields of study. A large number of the students are music, church music or music education majors, but behavioral science, English, elementary education, natural sciences and history are among the various majors represented.

The concert choir, consisting of 41 men and women students selected by audition, has performed throughout the academic year at a variety of locations and functions in St. Louis and across Missouri. At each performance the choir presents a wide variety of both sacred and secular music.

Draft office in Kennett closes June 21

KENNETT— The Kennett office of the State Selective Service will be closed, effective June 21, the state director of the Selective Service said Thursday.

Leslie M. Greiner, who has directed state Selective Service activities since March 1 of this year, said the Kennett office files will be moved to Sikeston, which will be the headquarters for eight counties in the Bootheel area.

Greiner said the move is part of another co- location project being undertaken by the state because of cuts in the budget.

Last year the 121 local boards in the state were reduced to 26 and Greiner says now they are being further reduced to 16 sites.

He said a decision has not been reached whether Mrs. Ruth Loraine Lowry, the executive secretary here, will be moved to Sikeston, but noted the Dunklin County board will remain the same.

Further details concerning registering for the selective service will be announced later.

Head Start registration set

Children aged 3 and 4 may be registered for next fall's Head Start program from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. May 6 and 7 at the Sikeston Head Start Center on Airport Road.

Birth certificates will be needed.

For more information, telephone 471- 2021.

Bernie is host to Sew With Cotton

BERNIE — "The Cotton Showboat" was the theme of the 1974 Stoddard County Sew With Cotton style show Saturday in the Bernie High School cafeteria. According to Mrs. Brenda Crow, education assistant- youth, University of Missouri Extension Center, Bloomfield, and program coordinator, a total of 58 girls participated in the event.

The highlight of the style show was the selection of 18 county winners who will represent Stoddard County at the district finals Saturday in Doniphan. The winners, three from each of the six different classes, received a prize plus a blue ribbon.

Sportswear class: Daronda Lewis, Evelyn Patrick and Janet Putnam.

Promotions of the Sew With Cotton program is made possible through financial contributions collected from area ginners by Mrs. Blair Dalton, county finance chairman.

Miss Mary Siebert Bernie High School home economics instructor, served as the 1974 hostess and county chairman. She was assisted by the Bernie FHA chapter, which prepared stage decorations and hosted a hospitality room among other responsibilities.

Assisting with this year's program was Miss Kay Davis, who served as the awards chairman and was responsible for the prizes.

The morning consisted of two educational programs. One program was on grooming and was presented by Miss Jewel Grady, area clothing and textiles specialist. The other program was instruction and training in modeling.

While the girls were in educational programs, their garments were being judged by Mrs. Debby Shelton, Mrs. Jesse Deardorff, Mrs. Joann Hampton, Mrs. Sue Eskew and Mrs. Dinae Fowler.

The judges were assisted by class arrangers who also registered the girls. The arrangers helping were Mrs. Cathy Ridenour, Miss Catherine Bader and Mrs. Bob Jenkins.

The style show was narrated by two Dexter and Bloomfield High School students, Miss Sue Waggoner and Miss Glenda Metcalf. Awards were presented by William D. Purnell, youth specialist.

Sew With Cotton is an extension youth program conducted in Stoddard County by the University of Missouri Extension Center at Bloomfield. The event is designed to provide an experience through the style show for personal growth and development, to increase competence in consumer education and clothing skills through the construction of a garment.

Jury finds Flotron innocent

BLOOMFIELD — Richard D. Flotron, business representative of union Local 1 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers of Cape Girardeau, was found innocent Thursday in a Circuit Court jury trial on a charge of flourishing a dangerous weapon.

The jury returned the verdict after nearly half an hour of deliberation on the case, which was heard on a change of venue from Cape Girardeau County.

Flotron had been charged with flourishing a weapon during disturbance at the Labor Temple in Cape Girardeau last Sept. 3. The incident stemmed from a confrontation between blacks and whites during Labor Day festivities.

Johnny Gene Rodgers of Dexter, charged with the March 31 stabbing of his brother, Danny Rodgers, was ordered taken to the Missouri State Hospital at Fulton to determine if he suffers from a mental disease or defect.

Russell Benfield was sentenced to eight years in custody of the State Deartment of Corrections for burglary and four years for stealing, with the sentences to run consecutively. The case was heard on a change of venue from Dunklin County.

Bond was raised to $15,000 for Dwight Butler of Malden, who is being held in the Stoddard County jail on a charge of burglarizing Shipman's Rebel Market in Dexter. Butler waived formal arraignment and entered a plea of not guilty.

Robert Dale Phillips withdrew a plea of not guilty and entered a plea of guilty to a charge of stealing. His case was referred to the State Board of Probation and Parole for a presentencing report.

A case against Herman Ray Dunn of Malden was continued until June 18 after he pleaded not guilty to a charge of burglarziging Southeast Cooperative Service Co. in Dexter.

Dissolution of marriage approval was granted to Everett C. Bryant and Amelia Bryant; Beatrice Bess and Charles W. Bess, with Mrs. Bess's prior name of Sutton restored; Norma Jean Rangerger and Johnny E. Rangerger, with Mrs. Rangerger receiving custody of two minor children and $10 per week per child support; Rebecca Ann Cecil and Gary D. Cecil; and Ina L. Tidwell and Norman W. Tidwell, with Tidwell receiving custody of two minor children.

Prowler stabs Dexter man

A call was received by the sheriff's office at 1:50 a.m. Saturday stating that a man had been stabbed.

Officers went to the home of James Chism on Route Two, where Chism was found suffering from a stab wound.

Chism told police that he heard noises outside and, when he opened the door to investigate, an unidentified man stabbed him in the stomach.

He was treated at Dexter Memorial Hospital and released.

DOES THIS MAKE SENSE??

We don't think so. Tri-County Bank is a progressive Bank and we want to give our customers the best services at the lowest cost. We are the smallest of the banks in our area, but our size has doubled in the last year. There is a reason for this increase, we try harder to know and provide our customers with the most modern services available. We will continue to grow because the time has come to stop charging customers for services that should be provided at NO-COST.

ASK YOURSELF WHY YOU BANK WITH ONE OF THE ABOVE BANKS

TRADITION:	Reason for a change— Tradition costs you money.
BANKING HOUSE:	Do you want to pay for a fancy bank building?
LOCATION:	Why drive? Bank by Mail. Tri County Bank provides complete no-cost Bank by Mail services. We pay all postage from both of our convenient locations.
INTEREST PAID ON SAVINGS:	Do you know what you are paid now on your savings? We pay the highest rates permitted by law.
BANK SOCIAL CLUB:	We are not a social club, we just save you money on all services. You may save enough to pay for gimmicks offered by other banks.
LOANS:	Tri- County Bank offers complete loan services at the lowest rate. Loan applications are accepted by phone.
PROBLEMS OF OPENING NEW ACCOUNT:	Simply clip out the enclosed coupon and send your check for the opening deposit. We do the rest for you. We will deposit the first $1.00 to open your account.
SECURITY:	We offer the same assurance for safety that is offered by any of the larger banks. Each depositor is insured to $20,000.00 by Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

If you consider all of the above, we are certain that you will agree that there is a reason so many people are moving their accounts to Tri- Country Bank. May we save you money?? We would certainly appreciate the opportunity to be your bank.

Police arrest 2 for theft after high-speed chase

Police arrested two Sikeston youths early today after they allegedly took two trucks from Al-Mar Sales, 127 W. Malone Ave., and one of them led police on a high-speed chase through Sikeston and New Madrid County.

Ricky Holifield, 19, of 415 Ruth St. was arrested for investigation of auto theft, and Ricky Washburn, 20, of 823 Ruth St. was arrested for investigation of auto theft and running six stop signs, speeding in the city, speeding in New Madrid County and having no license plates.

Officer Ray Merrick began chasing the two, who were in separate flatbed trucks about 11:35 p.m., after they began driving away at a high rate of speed from the former McKnight-Keaton building on West Malone Avenue.

They drove south on South Frisco Street and turned west on Ruth Street to Branum Street with Merrick chasing them. At Branum Street, Washburn turned south and Holifield turned north, Merrick said. He said he began chasing Washburn and followed him at a high rate of speed through several residential streets in the southwest part of town.

Washburn then allegedly turned onto West Murray Lane and drove east, running the stop sign at the intersection of South Kingshighway and Murray Lane at about 60 miles per hour.

Washburn allegedly ran a red light at the intersection of Highways 60 and 61, narrowly missing a house trailer being pulled by a truck on Highway 60.

Merrick said he continued to chase Washburn south on Highway 61. At one point Washburn allegedly stopped his truck and shifted into reverse and tried to ram the squad car. Several times he stopped suddenly, apparently hoping the squad car would ram into the back of the truck, police said.

Merrick said the truck was on the wrong side of the road quite often and finally ran off the road, through a ditch and back onto the road before Washburn stopped and was arrested at 12:05 a.m.

Merrick said the truck was smoking badly and was not in drivable condition after the chase. It had to be towed back to Sikeston.

Holifield was arrested at his home at 1:45 a.m. today. Police said he had returned the other truck to Al-Mar Sales.

Both youths were employed by Al-Mar.

Little Miss and Mister Dexter

Hearing set May 14 in tool theft case

A preliminary hearing was set on May 14 for Floyd Porter III and his common law wife Imogene Barrick, 1013 Applegate St., during Magistrate Court proceedings this morning in the Sikeston City Courtroom in connection with a tool theft case that turned up over $10,000 worth of tools in the house the couple shared.

Porter is charged with stealing personal property from Agrico Chemical Co. and from Bob McKnight, and Miss Barrick is charged with stealing personal property from Agrico Chemical Co.

In another case, a preliminary hearing was set on May 22 for Gregory Otis Terrell of Sikeston, who pleaded not guilty to April 2 charges of possession of marijuana and stealing personal property from the Sikeston public school.

A charge against Daniel Parden of forging a $40 check on March 30 by signing the name of Joe M. James Jr. was continued until May 30 to give him time to obtain an attorney.

Cases against Norman Dockins and David McDowell of Sikeston were continued until April 30. Dockins is charged with nonsupport, and McDowell is charged with stealing personal property on March 14 from Big Red's Auto Parts.

A warrant was issued for the arrest of David Sims of Sikeston who failed to appear in court on a Dec. 1, 1973 charge of writing a $25 bad check to Penneys.

Former Kennett woman robbed, beaten to death

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — An intensive investigation was continuing Monday into the murder of Eva Davidson Taylor, 73, of Goleta, Calif., a sheriff's spokesman said.

Mrs. Taylor, formerly of Kennett, Mo., was found dead in her home by relatives Thursday.

A sheriff's spokesman said it was the first murder in the county that wasn't solved within a day or two since January 1973. He added that burglaries are extremely rare in the county.

Caruthersville woman injured

CARUTHERSVILLE-- A Steele woman received minor injuries in a two- vehicle traffic accident three miles west of here Monday morning.

Arlene Holt, 41, was injured at 9:15 a.m. on Route U when the car in which she was riding was struck by a pickup truck driven by Basil Barksdale, 72, of Caruthersville.

The patrol said Barksdale failed to yield the right of way and pulled his truck into the path of the Holt auto.

The patrol report did not state whether Mrs. Holt was hospitalized or not.

Willie Holt, 30, of Steele, the driver of the car, was not injured.

Scott County Court endorses drainage plan

BENTON — The Scott County Court announced Monday that it plans to write a letter to the Army Corps of Engineers district office in Memphis, Tenn., to voice its approval of drainage projects the Corps of Engineers has announced to be performed in Scott County.

In a public hearing Thursday at Sikeston, the Corps of Engineers plan for improved drainage in Mississippi and New Madrid counties included 5.8 miles of drainage ditches in Sikeston to be cleared at an estimated cost of $287,000.

Presiding Judge Les Lankford said the court would mention in the letter that it would like to see more projects in Scott County than had been planned.

New policy

The board of directors of The Daily Standard has adopted a new policy on publication of proclamation and charity contribution pictures.

The board voted Monday to publish as a public service all quality pictures of proclamation signings if those pictures are supplied to The Daily Standard by the organization being recognized by the proclamation.

A similar policy was adopted for pictures of charity contributions.

Little Miss, Mister crowned at Dexter

DEXTER— Jackie Jean Turner, 4- year- old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Turner, and Richard Posey, 5- year- old son of Mrs. Anita Posey, won over 97 other contestants for Little Miss and Little Mister Dexter crowns in the annual contest held Monday night in the high school auditorium.

Camantha Pruett, 5, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cletus Pruett and Bryan Rehm, 5, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronnie Rehm, were chosen first runners- up.

Second runners- up were Michalle Williamson, 4, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Williamson, and Steven Ward, 5, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Ward.

The contest was sponsored by the Soroptimist Club of Stoddard County, with proceeds to be applied toward air conditioning the high school auditorium.

Last minute compromise frees funds

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — House and Senate conferees, aided by an interpretation of legislative rules that extended by 10 hours the deadline for passage of state appropriations bills, reached a compromise on the measures today after working through the night.

Rapid-fire floor approval in the Senate and House were expected this morning and the bills were to go to the governor.

Deadlocked for more than a week because of the conferees inability to reconcile the detailed line-item budget proposals of House with lump sum appropriations bills developed in the Senate, the committee finally moved quickly Monday after the House succumbed to Senate pressures.

As the committee, made up of five senators and five representatives, grappled with the 11 bills, the measures receiving approval were rushed to House-Senate staff members for printing.

The bills, covering the state's $2 billion budget for fiscal 1974-75, had to receive legislative approval before the end of the April 22 "legislative day" under joint rules of both houses.

Originally, both Senate and House members thought the deadline for sending the bills to the governor was Monday midnight.

But a reinterpretation of the rule said the deadline was the end of the so-called April 22 "legislative day," which would not officially end until the beginning of the legislative session today, April 23.

Among the appropriations bills agreed on were measures to provide $520 million for public elementary and secondary education, including $387 million in state aid to local schools.

Approval of the higher education appropriations saw the University of Missouri receive $113.7 million, including about $900,000 for the controversial Independence Residence Center, to be taken over by the university. It now is operated by Central Missouri State University at Warrensburg.

Although the appropriation was a boost over this year's figure of $104.7 million, it was more than $6 million less than requested by the university.

Appropriations from state taxes for state colleges and universities outside the University of Missouri system were:

Northeast Missouri State, $8.3 million; Northwest Missouri State, $6.9 million; Lincoln University, $5.3 million; Southeast Missouri State, $8.4 million; Southwest Missouri State, $12.2 million; Central Missouri State, $11.2 million; Missouri Western, $2.6 million; and Missouri Southern, $2.3 million.

The state's $57 million capital improvements budget also gained approval with the inclusion of several major items although most of the projects remained unchanged from committee recommendations.

Major building projects include $4.5 million for renovation and parking lot construction for a state office building at the Wainwright Building in downtown St. Louis, with a provision that state offices also be located in the Continental Building in midtown; $6 million for a veterinary medicine complex at the University of Missouri-Columbia, $6.2 million for a music conservatory and performing arts center at MU-Kansas City, and $2.2 million general services building at MU-St. Louis.

Also receiving acceptance were funding measures for the state Revenue Department, Mental Health, welfare, prisons and other state agencies.

The budget includes a 5 per cent across-the-board pay raise for all stat workers plus a merit increase for about 20 per cent of the state's employes.

The budget for the state's elective offices included no money for the Missouri Information Service, the public relations arm of the executive branch. A controversial St. Louis County Sewer District project received $2 million.

The House bill contained money for setting up new Revenue Department branch offices, doubling the state's total. The Senate eliminated the $1.4 million expenditure conferees agreed on new branch offices at Columbia, Florissant- Hazelwood and Raytown.

NEW MADRID-- The first step to initiate impeachment proceedings against City Marshal O. E. Householder was taken Monday in a special closed meeting of the Board of Aldermen, during which Mayor Robert A. Riley recommended that Householder be removed from office for cause.

Householder is to be given notice to appear at a meeting at 8 p.m. May 3 and show cause, if any, why such action should not be taken.

Aldermen who voted to approve the mayor's recommendation were Bill Boyd and Ras Jones of ward one, Bob Blom of ward two and Dick Phillips Jr. of ward three. Ward two alderman Ed LaValle was out of town and ward three alderman John A. Hunter, a son- in- law of Householder, abstained.

Proceedings for the marshal's removal from office stem from a shooting incident early Sunday morning involving Householder and Alderman Jones.

Householder is alleged to have fired a pistol during a fight with Jones which occurred at 12:45 a.m. outside Rosie's Colonial Restaurant and Tavern on Highway 61.

Witnesses reported one shot was fired, and in some manner the bullet struck Jones in the right hand as he grabbed for the gun and then deflected and wounded Householder's right leg.

Householder, at the time of the incident, was off duty, and both men reportedly had been drinking.

Jones was treated and released Sunday at Missouri Delta Community Hospital in Sikeston, where Householder was released Monday morning.

Jones signed a complaint Monday charging Householder with felonious assault with a pistol. Householder has been notified by the sheriff's office that a warrant has been issued and he has agreed to appear for arraignment in Magistrate Court as soon as his physical condition permits.

House passes maternal health care measure

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Both houses of the Missouri Legislature tuned up today for action on appropriations.

State-financed maternal health care gained approval in the House Monday while the Senate engaged in its second day of debate on reinstatement of the death penalty.

The maternal health care bill, favored by Gov. Christopher S. Bond, gained final approval without a dissenting vote in the House after having been shelved earlier in the session. It was revived last week and now goes to the Senate where the budget control committee killed a combined maternal health-hospital aid measure last week. That bill was opposed by the governor because of the inclusion of financial aid to hospitals.

Under the maternal health care bill, aimed at preventing mental retardation, women would be provided with statefinanced health care that Bond says will cut the incidence of mental retardation in their children considerably.

In the Senate, where chances for approval of the maternal health care bill appear dim with only a week left in the session, Sen. A. Clifford Jones, R-Brentwood, urged passage of a measure that would give police and city dwellers, he said, "a feeling of safety."

Jones claimed there would be no executions even if the death penalty were reinstated due to appeals and sentence communications. The only point in passing a death penalty bill, he contended, would be to satisfy public sentiment. The last execution in the Missouri gas chamber was in 1965.

The Senate, which spent seven days debating the death penalty before running out of time last year, has two Senate-sponsored reinstatement measures before it plus the one overwhelmingly approved by the House.

Many of Monday's arguments were the same as in the past.

"If we execute one innocent person, then that's one person too many," said Sen. Larry Marshall, R-Columbia. The recent slayings in the San Francisco area also came under discussion.

FRESH FRUIT IN YOUR OWN BACKYARD

This is a good time to put in fruit trees, and with prices where they are there is special appeal to the idea of having fresh fruits for the family right in your own backyard ... delicious foods you'll never have to buy again.

The American Association of Nurserymen, the national organization of authorities in such matters, has a few simple instructions that can contribute to the success of your fruit tree addition. The two major factors to consider in planting your fruit trees, they say, are good drainage and plenty of sun. Pick a spot where water will not remain standing and where the tree is in sunlight as much as possible during the day.

Select your own favorite fruit varieties suitable for this area from nursery- grown stock available from any reputable nursery garden center or mailorder house. Planting and care instructions will be readily available from the firm supplying the trees, but to give the new gardener an idea of the simplicity of the project he is undertaking the American Association of Nurserymen offers these brief hints.

First, prepare a hole large enough so the bare roots of the fruit trees fit in their natural shape. If the tree roots are balled in burlap the hole should be about twice the size of the ball. The soil you put back in the hole should fit snugly around the roots to avoid air spaces. When planting is completed, the new tree should be at about the same depth as it was in the nursery. Finally, protect the young tree's trunk with a wrapping of burlap or cloth or tree paper for its first season or two.

It sounds fairly simple the way the nursery people describe it, doesn't it? And it is. This is the right time to begin to enjoy nature's gift of fresh foods you'll never have to buy again.

An editor - friend writes: "We read a suggestion that many problems could be solved if everyone got equal pay. The idealist who proposes such a thing is oblivious to the fact that all willing workers do not produce -- we refer to the old cliche that some are willing to do it and the others are willing to let them. At any rate the small town businessman could not operate on an equal pay basis. The extra unpaid hours he puts in would have to be ruled out for to be equal in pay we must also be equal in hours worked. And if those unpaid hours were not worked -- well the small town business could not produce enough to support itself."

NEED A STATE-WIDE
VOTE ON THESE

Some legislators at Jefferson City continue to back bills that would increase retirement benefits for members of the House and Senate, after only six years of service.

Others continue to back bills that would raise salaries of legislators from the present $8,400 for their part time jobs to $10,000 or more.

What Missouri taxpayers need is an organization that would put both of these matters on the ballot, and let the people of the state, who pay the bill, decide what to do.

It is the heighth of the ridiculous and of poor business methods for us to allow the people we hire, - the Legislators - to set their own salaries and their own pension qualifications and pay.

Few businesses could survive under such a system.

NIXON'S WEALTH

The General Services Administration ruled Friday that President Nixon could not legally reclaim the vice presidential papers which he had deeded to the National Archives, even though his huge tax exemption claim for that donation had been disallowed.

To these many Americans who still support the President despite all the scandals blamed on his administration, this may seem to be an unfair blow. Disallowance of that tax exemption claim together with some others have left Mr. Nixon owing the federal government some $467,000 which, when paid, will virtually halve his known wealth of just under $1 million.

No denying that, it is a blow, but it won't leave the President a poor man; in fact, there is every reason to believe he will die at least a millionaire. The deeded papers were only a part — apparently a less important part — of his vice presidential papers. A syndicate is reported to have offered Mr. Nixon $1 million for what remains. And there will be the much more important papers and memoribilia of his presidency, once he retires.

Even more, most presidents, after retiring, write their memoirs and judging by prices paid in recent years, they probably will bring him close to a million dollars. And finally, he will have the pension to which all past presidents are entitled, currently $60,000 a year.

No doubt about it, Mr. Nixon will be a wealthy man in later years, regardless of the financial vicissitudes of the hour.

Not all presidents have been so fortunate, although some have. George Washington's estate at death, not too long after retirement from the White House, was valued at $530,000 — the equivalent of perhaps $20 million today.

And Lyndon B. Johnson was a millionaire, though the base of that wealth was laid in the 1940s through Mrs. Johnson's purchase of a Texas radio station that proved later to be a virtual gold mine, and shrewd reinvestments from its earnings.

On the contrary, Ulysses S. Grant was an extremely poor man through most of his life, retired comfortably well off only to lose all he had in a colossal swindle. He drove himself to work frenziedly through the last weeks of his life and completed just before his death the memoirs that brought his family $450,000 and saved his loved ones from virtual pauperdom.

More recent and much closer home was Harry Truman, a poor man all his life, comparatively a poor man yet when he retired. Of course, he had his presidential pension which was more than adequate to his needs, and he sold his memoirs at a high price.

On the other hand, Mr. Truman, unlike some presidents and most nationally famed politicians, refused adamantly to cash in on his prestige. After retirement, he was offered many highly lucrative posts but turned them all down, explaining.

"They were not interested in hiring Harry Truman, the person. It was the former president of the United States they wanted. I could never lend myself to any transaction, however respectable, that would commercialize on the prestige and dignity of the office of the presidency."

At least one other president — one sometimes compared to President Nixon because of unrelenting and severe castigations his administration endured — found the honor of heading the greatest nation on earth compensation enough; he never in his four years accepted a cent of salary. That was former President Herbert Hoover, a man far greater than most people of his day realized.

"A DAMN POOR SYSTEM"

Two U. S. physicians recently toured Great Britain under the auspices of the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare. They visited hospitals, talked to physicians and sat in on patient examinations. The conclusions they reached after observing Britain's nationalized medical system indicate that the people of the U. S. should think long and hard before plunging headlong into any all-encompassing form of national health insurance.

The two American doctors found that "primary care physicians" in the United Kingdom are "years behind and worlds apart from "their American counterparts. The average British general practitioner does virtually no lab work, no x-rays, no surgery and is prohibited from treating patients in the hospital. One of the U. S. doctors said, "British GPs are well- trained, knowledgeable individuals, but they just don't get a chance to use what they know. They're under a lot of pressure to avoid spending the government's money ... their patient loads are quite heavy, and the appointment schedules don't allow much more than five minutes per patient. It doesn't make any difference what the patient has, he only gets five minutes ..." One of the American doctors concluded, "The way I saw it, the British general practitioner is nothing more than a referral bureau. He's kind, he's considerate: but that doesn't find a malignancy, and that doesn't cure nephritis, and that doesn't cure a lot of things. It's just a damn poor system, and if we ever allow ourselves to get into that same situation we've had it."

The widely- accepted notion that all of those who advocate government sponsorship of "free medicine" for all are automatically endowed with greater wisdom and greater concern for their fellowman than opponents of such a system is a most dangerous fallacy.

PRINCIPLES OF FREEDOM

With some two million member families, The American Farm Bureau Federation is a true cross section of the United States. Since its policies on public matters are arrived at through an extensive membership participation program, those policies accurately reflect the convictions and beliefs of a large segment of American citizens.

A statement of those convictions and beliefs was presented to both the Democratic and Republican Party platform committees so that the major political parties and the country at large will know that American farm families want their government to "work toward a market-oriented agriculture and the elimination of compensatory payments as soon as possible." The statement declared, "A major objective of Farm Bureau policy is to create conditions whereby farmers and ranchers may earn and get high per-family real income in a manner which will preserve freedom and opportuniy. We firmly believe that this objective can best be accomplished by relying more on the market price system ... The prosperity of the nation's farm families depends on the successful functioning of the American capitalistic, private, competitive enterprise system." The statement condemned inflation breeding government spending that has brought steady erosion of the dollar and poses "... a serious threat to economic stability in our economy today..."

No group of American citizens have had more intimate experience with government controls and subsidies than farmers -- and no group is more vehement in calling for a return to free market principles and less government intervention in our lives. Here is a clear warning that all people are not ready to accept subservience to big government as a way of life.

HIGHER TRUCKING
RATES FOR MISSOURI

The Public Service Commission of Missouri has granted rate increase requests to truck companies, but in an effort to protect the public, substantially reduced the rates asked.

It allowed an increase of 6.5% on shipments of less than 5,000 pounds, and 4.5% on shipments over 5,000 pounds. It also denied the carrier's request for an increase in extra service charges.

The truckers had asked for increases of 17.55% on less than 5,000 pounds, and 9.68% on all above that.

The increases were justifiably allowed because of increased costs for truckers, just as rates and prices in all other areas have been forced into increases.

NOT SO BAD OFF A doctor showing tourists through a New York city mental hospital paused before a room in which a man was holding a beautiful, life-sized doll and was caressing her lovingly.

"This man," explained the doc, "was engaged to be married, but his bride- to - be jilted him at the last moment and married another man. The shock drove this poor fellow completely out of his mind and he imagines that doll to be his bride."

The visitors were deeply touched and uttered various expressions of sympathy.

Then they passed to the next room, which was covered with heavy iron bars and was thickly padded.

"And this" resumed the doc, "is the other man."

PERSONAL ENTERPRISE
SOLVING THE GAS
SHORTAGE

Almost unnoticed in the newspaper clamor over the flailings of Congress and the federal bureaucracy regarding our gas shortage, along with the news of the at- least-temporary lifting of the Arab oil embargo, was the fact that in spite of, rather than because of governmental regulations and allocations, the gas shortage had already begun to ease before the embargo ended. The cause was very simple: prices were rising to their reasonable market level.

For years, government has artificially held down the price of oil and natural gas. When to these earlier restrictions were added the tighter ones of the now- dying federal price control program of 1971 and the special problems caused by the Arab oil embargo, the shortage became obvious. This caused much trouble during January and February.

In March, while Federal Energy Administrator Simon was still trying to find out why the extra oil he supposedly allocated to the mid- Atlantic states at the end of February never arrived, and before the Arab oil embargo was lifted, gas became more and more readily available at the neighborhood pump throughout most of the country. Under the pressure of the shortage, and very quietly, the government had finally begun to do what it should have done long before: lift the price ceilings. Some of the chains were taken off personal enterprise, and it performed its usual miracle.

In fact there would never have been a severe shortage at all, had our government followed the example of the governments of most of free Europe and decontrolled gas prices from the very beginning.

THE POLYESTER
PLAN

WASHINGTON-- A group of men were having lunch at a well- known restaurant in Washington the other day. Although they were in various professions, they all had one thing in common. They were away from home a great deal and their wives had said they were getting fed up with it.

Amazingly enough it turned out that their wives, who did not even know each other, used the identical phrases when complaining about their lot.

These included: "All I'm doing is running a hotel."

"The only time I see you is when you come home to get clean laundry."

"You weren't even here for your own daughter's birthday party."

"What the heck is so important in-----?" (Fill in the city where you're going.)

It was at this juncture that Polyester, who works for a computer firm, sprung his plan.

"Our wives' main complaint," he said, "is that they have no one to talk to, which translates no one to bitch to. The reason why we're missed is that they want someone to listen to their stories and give them moral support."

We all agreed Polyester's description of our wives was accurate.

"Suppose," he said excitedly, "we had a computer that could match up complaining wives with other husbands who were on the road?"

We all looked goggle- eyed.

"Are you suggesting wife-swapping?" Acrilan asked.

"In a sense," said Polyester, "but no hanky- panky in the bedroom. You swap wives just so that they have someone to talk to. Let me give you an illustration. I'm on my way to Boston and I feed the computer at National Airport the arrival of my flight and how long I'll be there. I also tell the computer how many children I have, my position in the firm and salary.

"The object of the computer would be to match me as closely as possible to my own situation at home. The computer gives me an address and phone number. At this very moment there is a man in Boston coming to Washington, D. C., and he goes to his computer and asks for an address here. He gets mine. Right?

"Okay. I get to Boston and I check into my hotel. Now remember, the success of this scheme is no hanky- panky.

"Let's say my surrogate wife is Mrs. Dacron. I call her and ask when dinner is being served. I show up at the house at 6 p.m. and before I even get to hang my coat in the closet, Mrs. Dacron fills me in on the day. She tells me how lousy the kids have been behaving, what went wrong with the garbage disposal unit, how much she paid for eggs and how she can't manage a family on my salary. I get an earful.

"At this very moment the man from Boston is at my house listening to my wife doing two hours on what it's like to run a house when the man doesn't even know where the fuse box is.

"Mrs. Dacron is thrilled to have someone there to let out her frustrations on, and my wife finally has someone besides the kids to talk to."

"But what happens after dinner?" someone asked.

Polyester replied "I go into the living room and watch television while Mrs. Dacron does the dishes."

"Don't you help her with the dishes?"

"Hell no. It would ruin it for Dacron if I did something he didn't do. Then after watching TV I go to my hotel. Dacron, who presumably let my wife do the dishes while he read the evening paper, also goes back to his place."

The trouble with Polyester's plan, when we all discussed it later, is that not one of us could find a single thing wrong with it.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

JACK ANDERSON SAYS:
Urban Guerrillas

WASHINGTON-- The Symbionese Liberation Army's commando raid on a bank, with Patricia Hearst wielding an automatic rifle, has government officials frankly worried.

They see it as a sign that the assassinations, bombings, kidnappings and other terrorist tactics, which plague other nations from Argentina to Britain, may soon hit our cities.

There is no coordinated underground guerrilla movement. Indeed, the insurgents often argue over ideology and tactics. But the FBI has evidence of increasing cooperation between guerrilla groups.

In the Middle East, the Japanese Red Army is aiding the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine which, in turn, is sharing training resources with Turkish dissidents. Irish Republican Army insurgents have obtained sophisticated weapons from Arab terrorists, who get financial support from Libya.

Guerrillas in Bolivia, Chile and Uruguay are believed to be sharing weapons, tactical information and training resources. And in Europe, Arab terrorits are cooperating with German anarchists. Intelligence reports warn they, too, have access to extremely advanced weapons.

The FBI has linked SLA members to a student commune, known as the "Peking House," outside Berkeley, Calif. The SLA allegedly has drawn inspiration from the Maoist philosophy taught at the "Peking House."

When SLA members Russell Little and Joseph Remiro were arrested for the murder of an Oakland school official, police found guerrilla literature in their possession. The texts apparently evolved from guerrilla manuals first produced by the Chinese Communists.

But the most ominous development in the revolutionary movement has been a shift from the countryside to urban ghettos. Entire manuals have been written especially for the urban guerrillas. These have been widely studied by insurgents in Argentina, Brazil and Uruguay. Evidence of the shift toward urban warfare has also appeared in Africa and the Middle East.

The Symbionese Liberation Army is now imitating this new breed of revolutionaries. They stage daring robberies, murders and kidnappings, then disappear into hideouts in the middle of crowded cities.

This movement into heavily populated areas has forced American military experts to revamp their strategy for fighting guerrillas. The military is forbidden by law, however, from applying their expertise against domestic militants. The responsibility belongs strictly with the FBI.

We have seen lists of the revolutionary groups the FBI keeps tabs on, and we have seen intelligence reports describing their activities. Maoist- style guerrilla gangs already are active in many American cities, according to these FBI reports, and more acts of terrorism can be expected in the future.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

New Black Power:
Black Labor Convention Will Demand Bigger Voice and Sweeping New Unionization Campaigns

WASHINGTON-- Today's black labor leaders are the new breed. They're younger than their white "brothers." They're sophisticated. They're sharp. They're militant. Their two-year- old Coalition of Black Trade Unionists (CBTU), operating inside the labor movement, wants a much bigger piece of the leadership action than they're getting.

They say they've replaced the symbol of Uncle Tom's Cabin with the symbol of the huge Detroit Cobo Arena where they'll soon open their second annual convention to whip their apparatus into shape, to show their solidarity with congressional Black Caucus leaders and political powers such as Detroit's black Mayor Coleman Young.

And they'll demand that the national labor movement launch unionization drives in the inner cities and especially in the South.

Coalition leaders will open that convention of 1,800 delegates from scores of unions on May 3. The next day they plan to fill Detroit's central square with tens of thousands of black demonstrators to call for aid to auto workers and others whose jobs were washed out by the new styles of the energy crunch.

Their leaders are fast to see the new era. It's all around us. It is spurting out of the office of John Powell, chairman of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC), and from the Justice Department. The latter's Civil Rights division has upgraded and leapfrogged blacks over many white workers industry by industry-- the utilities and the truck and steel businesses.

Upcoming now for "equal employment" review is the "communications" field, meaning the national broadcasting networks and locals as well. Then banking. Finally the auto industry and public employment.

Industry by industry has been and will be disbursing reparation pay to black workers, remaking seniority lists, cracking the promotion pipelines and ripping apart departments and opening executive suites.

There's no doubt the black worker believes this is his-- and her-- year. What the government is ramming through, albeit in "consent decrees" in the mills, white-collar offices and "over- the-road" hauling, the blacks now will try to force inside labor.

Few realize there are some 500,000 black workers (out of 1.5 million members) in the United Auto Workers; some 200,000 of 1.2 million in the United Steelworkers; about 200,000 in the 615,000-member American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees; 200,000 of 2.1 million Teamsters, and hundreds of thousands more in the construction and (building) service trades.

The Black Coalition leaders say their followers' collective voice should be heard in labor's highest circles, such as the AFL- CIO Executive Council meeting here May 9. They want no quarrel with the traditional white leadership. But they want action.

"We will get closer to the people in the communities," says the municipal employes national secretary- treasurer, 39- year- old Bill Lucy, an influential member of the CBTU executive committee, "and get a voice for them in the leadership. We aren't needling anyone. But we want to get the community involved. We will go into our national convention to discuss this and political action- how to get results, how to deliver the vote. We will prepare to dig up the human resources of the black communities, to train people for political campaigns. We want organizing where there is no organizing. First we will go in to organize, and then get the new members into the proper unions. We have no special targets. Just organizing."

If Lucy and the rest of the Executive Committee-- a broad spectrum group-- mean what they say, the unionization and politicization drives will fan through the South. Wherever there are large black coalition unions, they will help the smaller ones. Where there are none, they'll send in organizers. There is Atlanta, for example, which has a new black mayor, Maynard Jackson.

It may all be a dream with a "we shall overcome" euphoria. But the new black leadership may get it off the ground. They may roll. It won't be as easy as the old civil rights drive. Nor will it be as popular with the labor establishment. But the coalition now can turn out 1,800 delegates. And in its executive group are national union vice presidents.

They want their place in the command posts of the building and construction trades, the teachers and other traditional white officialdom.

But it will come as the new proletariat replaces the old in the mills, in the transit systems and other mass industries.

Tomorrow's black power will have a stronger voice than the strident cries of yesterday.

MOVING EXPENSE TAX DEDUCTIONS

Prior to 1970, your moving expense tax deduction was limited to the cost of transporting your household goods and family transportation costs (including meals and lodging).

Now, in addition to these costs, you can also deduct travel expenses for pre-move house- hunting trips. Also deductible now, are temporary living expenses (up to 30 days) at the new job location. In addition, expenses such as real estate commissions, mortgage costs, and similar items incurred in buying or selling your home, or settling a lease are now deductible.

The maximum deduction for these newly added categories is $2,500. No more than $1,000 of this can be for house- hunting and temporary living expenses. These benefits now apply to the sel-f employed as well as to employees. To qualify for these deductions, your new job site must be at least 50 miles away. The old requirement was 20 miles.

(Editor's Note: Mr. Mitchell is Past President of the Sikeston Board of Realtors and is currently serving as Vice- President of the Missouri Association of Realtors.)

Ann Landers

Every girl needs exam before getting married

Dear Ann Landers: I have started this letter five times and now I am just going to say it the way it comes into my head. Please tell me if it is necessary for a girl to scream her head off because of the pain, the first time she has sexual intercourse?

My cousin (who has been like a sister to me) was married three weeks ago. When she returned from her honeymoon she told me the first few nights were agony. The pain was unbearable. The poor kid is only 18 and from a strict Catholic family where sex was never discussed. She certainly wasn't prepared for anything like that. Apparently her husband didn't know much either and they had a terrible time.

I am 16 years old and not as smart about these things as I ought to be. My "sex education" is mostly slumber- party chit- chat picked up from my girl friends. Two gals in our crowd were married this year and nobody said anything about pain. If I asked my mother such a question, she would turn ten shades of red and wonder what I was up to. So please, Ann, give me an answer.-- Dumb In Dubuque

Dear D.: Generally speaking, the initial act of intercourse is not so painful that a girl would "scream her head off." In the case of your cousin, however, there was probably some gynecological abnormality, such as an extremely thick membrane which should have been removed by a physician's scalpel. This is just ONE of the reasons every girl should have a gynecological examination before she marries.

Dear Ann Landers: I'd like to answer the letter signed "One Who'd Rather Fight Than Quit."

He says he is fed up with TV ads that try to scare people who smoke. He claims smoking is the only fun left in life that isn't illegal, immoral or fattening. His final words were, "Whose business is it?"

It is MY business when YOUR smoke might cause me to have an asthma attack or give me lung cancer.

The same newspaper that carried that idiot's statement reported the tragic death of 25 schoolboys who died in a dormitory fire in Belgium. The fire was started by a lad who was smoking in bed and fell asleep. I can't get the picture of those 25 little coffins out of my mind. It was murder by proxy. If that isn't immoral and illegal, what is?

Are you so worthless, sir, that your family would feel no grief, no sense of anguish if you should accidentally cremate yourself? But, as you said, you are over 21 and can do as you please.

May the Lord forever bless the medical institutions who do research, the lawmakers, the media, and the millions of concerned citizens who are trying to educate the public to the dangers of smoking. Go ahead and "rather fight" if you want to, but as for me-- I'm Glad I Quit

Dear Glad: I'm glad you quit, too. You represent one less nicotine addict to foul the air and jeopardize the rest of us who want no part of the filthy weeds.

Dear Ann: Have you ever had your face lifted? I bet my brother- in- law you did and I have agreed to give $1,000 to your favorite charity if you will admit it in print.-- Beverly Hills

Dear Bev.: I'd sure love to collect that $1,000 for The Lambs, whose address is simply Libertyville, Illinois. They employ retarded adults and sell the best bakery goods I ever ate in my life, but the answer is NO. Thanks for the compliment, anyway.

Don't flunk your chemistry test. Love is more than one set of glands calling to another. If you have trouble making a distinction you need Ann's booklet, "Love or Sex and How To Tell the Difference." Send a long, self- addressed, stamped envelope with your request and 35c in coin to Ann Landers, P. O. Box 3346, Chicago, Illinois 60654.

Summer '74 will be full of variety in looks,silhouettes, fabrics and colors. Easy, ungimmicked shapes will be done in soft, flowing fabrics. Clear colors will be worn tone- on- tone for a polished pulled together look. Clothes that are easy to wear and go many places are what the miss and junior customer are looking for this summer.

The dress revival is here. Dresses take on a fresh new look for summer in light as a feather fabrics and a soft, fluid feeling. Shirtdresses and wrapdresses are worn with a shapelier, more refined shoe to create an air of elegance. Shirt on shirt looks and multi- piece dresses give the fashionable lady a pulled together look with the ease of one- stop shopping.

Skirts are a fashion fact this summer. They can be worn short or long, solid or print, in easy pleats,softly gathered or gently flipped. Wear them with a soft shirt or a classic T-shirt. Add a print scarf or simple chain at the neck, and top everything with a fun hat, and the look is complete.

Pants have become the great American classic. They look great with nearly everything. Try them with a new bare T-shirt, a halter or an art deco shirt. The finishing touch is jewelry reflecting the natural influence in shells, denim and wood.

Clothes show variety

Wallpaper flowers on chintz pants, a bared down T-shirt and many skinny bangles are fun for summer '74.

Caring for your new baby

Key to disciplining is 'reward'

XI. After the First Weeks— Part 5

soc

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is another in a series of 18 articles presented by the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare to describe some of the things about normal babies that commonly worry parents and tell what to do or not to do about them. The articles should answer many questions about what to expect of your new baby and give simple instructions about solving problems that most parents face during their baby's first year of life. This section of the series concerns development of the child after the first few weeks when he is visibly growing every day, developing a few rudimentary language skills and becoming more mobile.)

Discipline and Teaching

The word "discipline" means teaching. It does not mean punishment, as many people think. Your child will be well "disciplined" when he learns to do those things which please you and which help him to grow and develop, and when he learns not to do those things which displease you and the people around him and which keep him from growing and developing.

The key to learning and discipline is not punishment, but reward. When your baby first smiles, you pay attention to him and smile back. When he smiles again, you smile back and pay attention to him again, and you may talk to him and cuddle him. He soon learns that when he smiles good things happen to him, and he learns to do a lot of smiling when you are around.

In just the same way, when you pay attention to his first cooing and gurgling sounds, your smile, your voice and your fondling reward him. He coos and gurgles more and more frequently. When he is five or six months old, he begins to notice that you "reward" him more when he repeats sounds you make than when he makes just any old sound. Pretty soon he imitates everything you say and begins to learn to talk.

If his smile is constantly ignored, he will stop smiling. And if his cooing and gurgling and making sounds is constantly ignored, he will soon stop making sounds. You actually teach your child to smile by rewarding him when he smiles, and you actually teach him to talk by rewarding him when he talks! You teach him by responding to what he does in a consistent way. If you want him to smile, you respond to the smile. If you don't want him to smile, you ignore it.

The same thing holds true for almost all other kinds of behavior. When you respond to something your child does by giving your attention, a smile, a kind word, or by fondling or joy, your baby will do that thing more and more frequently. If you ignore it, it will be done less and less frequently. With these two methods, rewarding and ignoring, you will teach your child almost everything he learns.

What about punishment? Will a baby stop doing something if he is constantly punished for it? It should work that way but actually punishment doesn't work well in the first years of life. The baby usually can't figure out just what behavior is being punished.

If you slap him when he throws a spoonful of food on the floor, he may not know whether he is being punished for eating, for trying to feed himself or for something else. He may stop eating or trying to feed himself rather than start to become a neat eater.

Then too, punishment is a form of attention. Some babies may enjoy attention more than they dislike the punishment. If a child who threw a spoonful of food on the floor saw just a slight frown on his mother's face and was rewarded with a smile for many of the times he got the spoon on his mouth, he would soon give up any purposeful spilling.

Of course, the baby sooner or later must learn that some of the things he does makes people around him irritated or angry. You don't have to be always calm, smile or hold your temper. But, the fact that his behavior is sometimes irritating and that you show your irritation in natural ways at times is quite different from trying to teach him to behave through punishment.

There are some things your baby will do which are just plain dangerous. During the first year of life, if he gets hold of something sharp or something he can swallow, you just must take it away from him promptly.

At the end of the first year, you can begin to teach him the meaning of "no" by rewarding him when he stops doing something dangerous when you say the word. Soon you will be able to use the word "no" to keep him out of dangerous situations.

Save most of your harsh words and punishments for teaching him about things that are really dangerous. Don't waste your "no- no's" on things that really don't matter.

City's first woman telephone installer is enthusiastic

One Final check

With the main part of a telephone mounted on the wall of an apartment, telephone installer Tammy Houston checks the dial tone and digits before putting on the front.

By JUDY STRICKLIN

Tammy Houston, a slim 19- year- old, has a rather unique job. She is the first woman telephone installer for Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. in the Sikeston area.

Miss Houston is formerly of Springfield "and several other places." Her father is also employed by the telephone company, so she is accustomed to the dialect and humor of telephone company personnel.

Miss Houston attended college at Springfield for two years, but "got bored with school" last fall and wanted to earn her own way for a while, so she applied for several jobs in Springfield. Then her father encouraged her to apply at Southwestern Bell. She applied, took the company test and two days later received a call saying a telephone installer was needed in Sikeston, if she was interested.

From there, she went to Kansas City to the Initial Plant Employes Training School, for three weeks where she learned, among other things, "how to shinny up a pole." That was followed by another two weeks at an installation school.

"While attending the schools, we (employes) stayed at a motor lodge we laughingly called "Southwestern Bell Dorm" because most of those going to school were there," she said.

"For a 19- year- old, there's plenty of security in a job with the telephone company," she added. "For instance, if I couldn't have handled this job, I could have applied for one elsewhere in the company before the officials would have fired me simply because I might not have been suited for this situation."

Miss Houston was quick to add, however, that she does feel suited to the job and has learned a lot during her three months of actually being on the installation force.

When asked how people react to her job, she said men always laugh or chuckle and say, "Well, I'll be!"

The women, however, come in two categories. They either seem really pleased to see a woman installer, or they act like she's entirely out of place and doing something entirely for men.

Miss Houston said she expected to find resentment and a few weird looks from the men at the installation shack when she arrived, but was relieved to find none.

"Most of them (other installers) are kind and helpful and have a tendency to protect me. Some act like I'm a baby bird and try to give me a little advice here and there to help out. Mostly, I appreciate them when I get discouraged because I'm slower than they are.

"I haven't had the time yet to increase my speed," she continued, "but, I'm working on it. I know I can count on any of them when I have a question or problem, and they always will laugh it off and not make fun of me...like when the company said I had to learn to drive my own truck, and I couldn't get it in one of those narrow parking places. They kept reminding me that I was working, not going shopping at the local center."

In her spare time, Miss Houston reads, works at such crafts as pottery, candle-making and string art and enjoys playing the guitar for her own benefit. She also has a cat which recently had four kittens.

"I'm happy in Sikeston; I like the people and everyone seems very friendly," she concluded. "Yeah, I guess anyone could be happy as a Sikeston installer if they just tried."

Finding the right wire

Finding the right wire can sometimes be a little tricky, according to Miss Tammy Houston, Sikeston's first woman telephone installer, but the best way to do it is "take a seat" and proceed with care.

Rain won't stop her

Even a cool rain like the one in Sikeston Monday afternoon, doesn't stop Tammy Houston from checking outside wires to install a telephone in a new apartment complex. Miss Houston says the rain, snow, etc., can bother her at times, but it also bothers the men telephone installers as well.

The College Singers

Singers to perform

The College Singers from Missouri Baptist College at St. Louis will appear at Trinity Baptist Church, Highway 61 North, Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. under the direction of Mrs. Marjorie Psalmonds.

During its annual spring concert tour this week, the concert choir will perform in high schools, colleges and churches in Tennessee, Arkansas and Illinois, as well as Missouri.

The College Singers are musically talented students representing freshmen through senior classes and many different major fields of study. A large number of the students are music, church music or music education majors, but behavioral science, English, elementary education, natural sciences and history are among the various majors represented.

The concert choir, consisting of 41 men and women students selected by audition, has performed throughout the academic year at a variety of locations and functions in St. Louis and across Missouri. At each performance the choir presents a wide variety of both sacred and secular music.

During the fall semester the choir performs traditional Christmas music and for a first time this winter presented the Christmas opera, "Amahl and the Night Visitors". During the spring semester the choir builds a repertoire that includes the works of composers Giovanni Palestrina, Christopher Tye, Dietrich Buxtehude, Noble Cain, Thomas Cousins and Randall Thompson. Many tunes from popular musicals are also included in the program. Missouri Baptist College is a four- year liberal arts school offering 12 major fields of study with a record spring enrollment of 500.

Draft office in Kennett closes June 21

KENNETT— The Kennett office of the State Selective Service will be closed, effective June 21, the state director of the Selective Service said Thursday.

Leslie M. Greiner, who has directed state Selective Service activities since March 1 of this year, said the Kennett office files will be moved to Sikeston, which will be the headquarters for eight counties in the Bootheel area.

Greiner said the move is part of another co- location project being undertaken by the state because of cuts in the budget.

Last year the 121 local boards in the state were reduced to 26 and Greiner says now they are being further reduced to 16 sites.

He said a decision has not been reached whether Mrs. Ruth Loraine Lowry, the executive secretary here, will be moved to Sikeston, but noted the Dunklin County board will remain the same.

Further details concerning registering for the selective service will be announced later.

Head Start registration set

Children aged 3 and 4 may be registered for next fall's Head Start program from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. May 6 and 7 at the Sikeston Head Start Center on Airport Road.

Birth certificates will be needed.

Bernie is host to Sew With Cotton

BERNIE — "The Cotton Showboat" was the theme of the 1974 Stoddard County Sew With Cotton style show Saturday in the Bernie High School cafeteria. According to Mrs. Brenda Crow, education assistant- youth, University of Missouri Extension Center, Bloomfield, and program coordinator, a total of 58 girls participated in the event.

The highlight of the style show was the selection of 18 county winners who will represent Stoddard County at the district finals Saturday in Doniphan. The winners, three from each of the six different classes, received a prize plus a blue ribbon.

The following winners will represent Stoddard County in their respective classes at the district finals:

Sportswear class: Daronda Lewis, Evelyn Patrick and Janet Putnam.

Promotions of the Sew With Cotton program is made possible through financial contributions collected from area ginners by Mrs. Blair Dalton, county finance chairman.

Miss Mary Siebert Bernie High School home economics instructor, served as the 1974 hostess and county chairman. She was assisted by the Bernie FHA chapter, which prepared stage decorations and hosted a hospitality room among other responsibilities.

Assisting with this year's program was Miss Kay Davis, who served as the awards chairman and was responsible for the prizes.

The morning consisted of two educational programs. One program was on grooming and was presented by Miss Jewel Grady, area clothing and textiles specialist. The other program was instruction and training in modeling.

While the girls were in educational programs, their garments were being judged by Mrs. Debby Shelton, Mrs. Jesse Deardorff, Mrs. Joann Hampton, Mrs. Sue Eskew and Mrs. Dinae Fowler.

The judges were assisted by class arrangers who also registered the girls. The arrangers helping were Mrs. Cathy Ridenour, Miss Catherine Bader and Mrs. Bob Jenkins.

The style show was narrated by two Dexter and Bloomfield High School students, Miss Sue Waggoner and Miss Glenda Metcalf. Awards were presented by William D. Purnell, youth specialist.

Sew With Cotton is an extension youth program conducted in Stoddard County by the University of Missouri Extension Center at Bloomfield. The event is designed to provide an experience through the style show for personal growth and development, to increase competence in consumer education and clothing skills through the construction of a garment.

Jury finds Flotron innocent

BLOOMFIELD — Richard D. Flotron, business representative of union Local 1 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers of Cape Girardeau, was found innocent Thursday in a Circuit Court jury trial on a charge of flourishing a dangerous weapon.

The jury returned the verdict after nearly half an hour of deliberation on the case, which was heard on a change of venue from Cape Girardeau County.

Flotron had been charged with flourishing a weapon during disturbance at the Labor Temple in Cape Girardeau last Sept. 3. The incident stemmed from a confrontation between blacks and whites during Labor Day festivities.

Johnny Gene Rodgers of Dexter, charged with the March 31 stabbing of his brother, Danny Rodgers, was ordered taken to the Missouri State Hospital at Fulton to determine if he suffers from a mental disease or defect.

Russell Benfield was sentenced to eight years in custody of the State Deartment of Corrections for burglary and four years for stealing, with the sentences to run consecutively. The case was heard on a change of venue from Dunklin County.

Bond was raised to $15,000 for Dwight Butler of Malden, who is being held in the Stoddard County jail on a charge of burglarizing Shipman's Rebel Market in Dexter. Butler waived formal arraignment and entered a plea of not guilty.

Robert Dale Phillips withdrew a plea of not guilty and entered a plea of guilty to a charge of stealing. His case was referred to the State Board of Probation and Parole for a presentencing report.

A case against Herman Ray Dunn of Malden was continued until June 18 after he pleaded not guilty to a charge of burglarzing Southeast Cooperative Service Co. in Dexter.

Dissolution of marriage approval was granted to Everett C. Bryant and Amelia Bryant; Beatrice Bess and Charles W. Bess, with Mrs. Bess's prior name of Sutton restored; Norma Jean Rangerger and Johnny E. Rangerger, with Mrs. Rangerger receiving custody of two minor children and $10 per week per child support; Rebecca Ann Cecil and Gary D. Cecil; and Ina L. Tidwell and Norman W. Tidwell, with Tidwell receiving custody of two minor children.

Prowler stabs Dexter man

A call was received by the sheriff's office at 1:50 a.m. Saturday stating that a man had been stabbed.

Officers went to the home of James Chism on Route Two, where Chism was found suffering from a stab wound.

Chism told police that he heard noises outside and, when he opened the door to investigate, an unidentified man stabbed him in the stomach.

He was treated at Dexter Memorial Hospital and released.

DOES THIS MAKE SENSE??

We don't think so. Tri-County Bank is a progressive Bank and we want to give our customers the best services at the lowest cost. We are the smallest of the banks in our area, but our size has doubled in the last year. There is a reason for this increase, we try harder to know and provide our customers with the most modern services available. We will continue to grow because the time has come to stop charging customers for services that should be provided at NO-COST.

ASK YOURSELF WHY YOU BANK WITH ONE OF THE ABOVE BANKS

TRADITION: Reason for a change— Tradition costs you money.

BANKING HOUSE: Do you want to pay for a fancy bank building?

LOCATION: Why drive? Bank by Mail. Tri County Bank provides complete no-cost Bank by Mail services. We pay all postage from both of our convenient locations.
